New York City Suspend 644 Rowdy Students

Officials Now Wonder What To Do with Kids; Action Draws Protests

NEW YORK (AP)—The Board of Education's new policy of ousting violent students to protect the innocent resulted Friday in the suspension of at least 644 pupils.

In elementary, junior and vocational high schools, 544 students were suspended. At least 100 others were suspended from academic high schools.

This last figure, however, was incomplete because many of the schools operated sessions well into the afternoon and after the suspension total was released.

Both boys and girls were included in the ouster but the announcement gave no numerical breakdown by sex. Nor was a breakdown given by race. The suspensions presumably are for an indefinite period.

The largest exodus was from Brooklyn, scene of many of the recent school rapes, stabbings and disorders in which both Negro and white students were involved.

SOME 339 students were suspended in Brooklyn, 113 in Manhattan, 51 in the Bronx, 36 in Queens and 15 in Staten Island.

The action was a swift implementation of a decision taken by the Board of Education Thursday night. The board at that time adopted a resolution authorizing suspension of any pupils "charged with violation of law involving violence or insubordination."

Schools Supt. William Jansen, spelling out in detail the categories of pupils to which the new policy applied, made no reference to an actual law violation as a precondition of suspension.

Allen said it was "very clear that there is present authority" for school authorities "to do what they want to do."

The action brought into immediate focus the problem of what to do with the ousted pupils.

Wagner said he was conferring with other city officials about finding some "temporary facilities" that could be made available to handle suspended pupils.

The board's new policy was protested by organizations of parents, teachers and child welfare experts.

Mrs. Ralph Morris, director of the Public Education Assn., said: "In attempting to force city and state officials to assume their responsibilities, the board has committed an act of desperation and almost certainly an illegal one as well."

THE CIVIL Liberties Union called the new policy "excessively harsh."

The Citizens' Committee for Children described the board's action as "an abject surrender to pressure and an hysterical response to the moment." The committee urged the state to proceed with plans for work camps for delinquent children.

"Sending idle delinquents into the streets cannot be considered an answer," said the United Parents Assn.

The New York Teachers Guild called the board's action "shocking evidence that the city has not provided schools which can meet the needs of our time."

The New York Police Department has reported a 13.3 per cent increase in juvenile arrests in New York City in 1957 over the previous year.

The department's annual report showed that arrests for all crimes, both adult and juvenile, increased 3.2 per cent.

Business Very Slow For Holdup Man Too

CINCINNATI (AP)—Byers Ferrell had a grand opening of his new chili parlor, but, things were mighty slow.

Finally, a tall man who looked like a prospective customer entered. Then Ferrell saw the man was masked and had a pistol.

"Give me all the cash," the man demanded.

Ferrell reached under the counter and forked over all the cash—a one dollar bill.

The man grabbed it and ran.

Bell Telephone Users Urged To Finance Study of Firm

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An independent appraisal of Ohio Bell Telephone Co. property might be financed by each telephone subscriber in the state by paying 25 cents toward the cost, suggests Atty. Gen. William Saxbe.

He claims "it would be the best investment they could make." Ohio Bell is seeking a 28 million dollar annual rate increase. One of the ways to get it is to prove to the Utilities Commission that the company is making less than reasonable earnings of the value of its facilities.

A group of Ohio cities gathered Friday to figure ways to raise money for an independent inventory of Ohio Bell property. In this way, the cities think they will be in a better position to challenge company figures.

L. T. Pendleton, an Ohio Bell vice president, was told of that decision and said he thought it would only delay the case.

"About your suggestion that we don't call in outside experts," Saxbe told Pendleton, "it seems to me

GOP Solons Challenged To Back Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said today that Secretary of State Dulles "needs votes for his foreign policies a lot more than the praise of right-wing Republicans."

Humphrey and Sen. Fullbright (D-Ark.) challenged Republicans who lauded Dulles in the Senate Thursday to follow up by supporting his foreign aid and reciprocal trade program.

These two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee spoke out after a number of Senate Republicans defended Dulles against some Democratic criticism that he has been inflexible in his approach to a summit meeting with Russia. Several of these Republicans in the past have voiced repeated disagreement with some administration policies on overseas aid and foreign trade.

The Republicans, led by Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, include Sens. Jenner (Ind.), Butler (Md.) and Hruska (Neb.). Humphrey said he was surprised to see what he called "the new allies Mr. Dulles has acquired."

"I hope these new allies will join with us, who believe with Mr. Dulles in foreign aid and trade, in support of these policies," he added.

Judge Is Correct In Analyzing Boy

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Judge Ralph E. Hoyt rejected a mother's plea for probation for her son Friday with the remark "someone might get hurt" if the 16-year-old boy were freed.

With that the 190-pound youth leaped on the 63-year-old judge and floored him. Mrs. Lorraine Jarrell, court reporter, was felled to her knees and bruised.

A bailiff helped free the judge, who was skinned and bruised. The boy, whose name was withheld by juvenile authorities, had been found guilty of robbery and ordered turned over to the California Youth Authority.

'Retired' Farm Plan Said Dead

Bids from 3 States Claimed Too High

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department's experiment to attack surplus crops by retiring entire farms from crop production appears to have collapsed before it got started.

The department announced Friday night the rejection of all bids, totaling about 40,000, to retire whole farms in Tennessee, Illinois and Nebraska. The announcement said the farmers asked too high prices.

Farmers in the three states and Maine had been asked to submit bids for farm retirement as part of a trial plan in connection with the $325 million conservation reserve of the soil bank program.

Officials said bids for retiring farms in Maine will be received through the rest of February. But they added the initial response in the other three states was far from encouraging. Some officials said the plan is dead.

Had it been successful, it probably would have been extended to other states next year. The plan proposed retiring farms for 5 to 10 years.

THE DEPARTMENT didn't give any figures but said the great majority of bids received were too high in relation to the productivity and rental value of the land involved.

Since too few acceptable bids were received to make the plan effective, the department said it rejected all bids.

Agriculture officials reportedly had set a standard of about $13 an acre for retiring farms under the trial program. Most offers presumably were above that.

Man Stabbed; Wife Charges Assault Try

Ivan Godlove, 40, Atlanta, received severe lacerations of the face last night as a result of a family argument, according to Berger Hospital officials.

Mrs. Emily Godlove said she stabbed her husband in self defense as he was pulling her hair and beating her. Mrs. Godlove filed charges of assault and battery against her husband, who will be confined to Berger Hospital until Monday.

Godlove was stabbed with a short-bladed finger nail file. The Godlove's were returning from Washington, C. H. when Godlove turned off onto a side road east of 277 and began beating his wife, Mrs. Godlove stated.

Atlas Blows Up In Mid-Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A $2 million Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) blew up after less than four minutes of flight Friday.

Before it shattered into bits about 30 miles above the ocean, however, the thin-skinned missile had yielded virtually all the essential data that even a much longer test flight could have provided, the Air Force said.

Air Force experts today started the long task of reducing that data to usable information and to facts which might help prevent the loss of still another ICBM.

Two earlier Atlas missiles were destroyed last year shortly after launching. Because of the volumes of information gained, the Air Force classed those flights not as failures but as 95 per cent successful.

Only two of the five 5,000-mile range ICBMs launched to date have been completely successful.

THE MISSILE, about 70 feet tall and 8 feet in diameter, was launched after more than four hours of delays in prelaunch checkouts.

Navy Plans Cruise for Labor Chiefs

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders planned to head out to sea today for an all-day cruise on the aircraft carrier Ranger after batten down hatches on some of labor's internal troubles.

The Navy brings some of its biggest and best ships here every year to display to labor leaders during their annual winter meetings. On Monday the Air Force is flying the AFL-CIO chiefs to inspect the U.S. missile test center at Cape Canaveral.

Before recessing sessions until Tuesday, the AFL-CIO Executive Council ordered the federation's 137 unions to comply with labor's own ethical practices codes aimed at curbing corruption.

Noncomplying unions were given until April 15 to set their houses in order or face corruption probes. The codes outline standards for democratic union procedures, the conduct of officials and safeguards for union money.

The deadline was set to avoid possible stricter congressional controls on unions. AFL-CIO leaders coupled their action with the implied request that Congress let labor clean its own house.

The council also ordered all AFL-CIO unions to quit boycotting or refusing to handle products made by members of rival unions in disputes on job rights. Such future boycotts were ordered solved by a neutral umpire.

center site it appeared to be a perfect launching and climb-out.

The Air Force promptly announced that it had test fired an Atlas as part of the routine in its ICBM development program.

The missile raced up and up in brilliant sunshine toward a blue sky. Slightly more than two minutes away from the launching site its engines cut out and its flaming yellow exhaust winked out.

From this point the missile proceeded ballistically, like a bullet or hurled stone. It was no longer visible from the launching site.

From beaches south of Cape Canaveral the Atlas, now in coasting flight, was visible for almost a minute after engine cutoff. At the end of that time there was a pale puff of smoke, and the missile disappeared. Watchers were uncertain whether the Atlas found trouble or whether the puff had been engine smoke.

Aboard a National Airlines plane piloted by Capt. Carl Greenwood, there was no uncertainty.

The plane was 80 miles north of Cape Canaveral, on the way from New York to Miami, when Greenwood saw the Atlas leave the ground, trailing vapor paths and smoke from the booster rockets used for launching.

Greenwood told the passengers to watch the Atlas, and turned the plane so they could see.

At the end, Greenwood said, there was no flame but "just a tremendous puff of smoke high in the sky, a puff probably 80 times the size of the rocket as it looked to us then."

Air Force officers said they probably never would know just how the Atlas destroyed itself.

The wreckage fell too far at sea to be recovered, they said.

Cold Weather Remains Here

Cold weather is slated to remain in the Circleville area today, tonight and tomorrow.

Heart Fund Drive Opens; Goal $3,500

Mrs. Hoyt Timmons, Route 1, Circleville, secretary-treasurer of the Circleville and Pickaway County 1958 Heart Fund Drive, today announced that the campaign here is in full swing.

Mrs. Timmons said the goal here has been set at $3,500. Members of the campaign are meeting this challenge with an all-out effort.

The local offensive against the dreaded heart disease will move into high gear on Heart Sunday, February 23. On this day volunteers will make a door-to-door collection in Circleville and other sections of the county.

School children of Pickaway County this week joined in the fight against heart ailments. Mrs. Timmons said all schools have received specially designed coin cards.

Funds collected here are used to sponsor heart research, community service and educational programs, with 75 per cent of the money collected remaining in Ohio.

Curbs Asked On Gifts to FCC Officials

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chairman of a House group investigating the Federal Communications Commission says he favors legislation to prohibit FCC members from accepting payments from industry.

Rep. Moulder (D-Mo.), head of a special subcommittee looking into allegations of misconduct by five FCC members, said Friday he hopes his group will make such a recommendation in its probe.

The subcommittee has received testimony about acceptance from broadcasting interests of such things as fees for speeches and travel expenses.

Five of the seven FCC commissioners are appointees of President Eisenhower. Three of the Eisenhower appointees and two named by former President Truman have been accused of personal misconduct.

Moulder, whose subcommittee will resume hearings Tuesday, said if FCC members make inspection trips, the government should pay their expenses, "and they shouldn't receive honorariums at the same time."

Sen. Proxmire (D-Wis.) announced earlier he will introduce a bill making offers of honorariums punishable by a fine of up to $5,000 and a year in jail. The same penalty would apply to federal officials taking "any gift, gratuity, or transfer of money or other things of value."

In Rush to Fire, She Is Cause of Another

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Frazzle Bozeman rushed to her mother's home when her daughter came in yelling "grandma's house is on fire!"

While she was there, her brother rushed in and said her own house was on fire.

In her haste, Mrs. Bozeman had left the iron turned on. It had burned through the ironing board and ignited some clothing.

Air Force Gets Nod on Space Ships

GE Electronics Expert To Guide Nation's Satellite Development

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense McElroy has picked a boss for American outer space projects and handed the new Advanced Research Projects Agency its assignment of developing weapons of tomorrow.

He also has decided tentatively that the Air Force should provide crews for future space ships.

Named to head the ARPA was Roy W. Johnson, 52, vice president of the General Electric Co., where he formerly was in charge of electronics.

These developments Friday indicated that the long-delayed Pentagon space agency finally was getting ready for the development of such weapons as military satellites, antimissile missiles and space platforms.

Johnson's appointment came after a weeks-long quest for some executive who would take on the job. He will take over the ARPA post on April 1, when he will resign from General Electric.

McElroy said he still is looking for a "most highly qualified scientist" to head a group to provide technical direction within ARPA.

At a news conference in New York, Johnson said he was not a scientist or a technical man, but an administrator.

Johnson estimated it might take 18 months to two years to get the ARPA running effectively.

The ARPA is intended to coordinate space research in the Defense Department and eliminate interservice rivalry in this field.

McElroy's directive setting up ARPA provides that the agency may farm out particular space projects to individual services or tap the services for scientists and technicians. It also is authorized to get help from business firms, educational, research or scientific institutions.

ARPA is given authority to acquire or build facilities and equipment for development and test projects. However, existing military facilities "shall be used to the maximum extent practicable," the directive says.

With both the Air Force and the Army racing for a major assignment in the space field, the question had arisen: Which service will provide the crews when space ships are built?

McElroy, replying to that question at a news conference, said:

"IN MY JUDGMENT, the operation of manned flight vehicles seems very naturally to fall within the scope of Air Force responsibility." However, he said this could be changed.

At the same news conference, McElroy said the Army has been freed from a 1956 order limiting it to operating missiles of ranges up to 200 miles. That limitation "does not any longer exist," McElroy said.

Explaining the action is intended to give the Army greater field mobility, McElroy said it could be assumed the Army would not "stretch this out to get into a strategic mission."

The Air Force has been assigned the strategic mission of striking at an enemy's homeland and its war-making capacity.

Heart Fund Drive Opens; Goal $3,500

Mrs. Hoyt Timmons, Route 1, Circleville, secretary-treasurer of the Circleville and Pickaway County 1958 Heart Fund Drive, today announced that the campaign here is in full swing.

Mrs. Timmons said the goal here has been set at $3,500. Members of the campaign are meeting this challenge with an all-out effort.

The local offensive against the dreaded heart disease will move into high gear on Heart Sunday, February 23. On this day volunteers will make a door-to-door collection in Circleville and other sections of the county.

School children of Pickaway County this week joined in the fight against heart ailments. Mrs. Timmons said all schools have received specially designed coin cards.

Funds collected here are used to sponsor heart research, community service and educational programs, with 75 per cent of the money collected remaining in Ohio.

McElroy's directive setting up ARPA provides that the agency may farm out particular space projects to individual services or tap the services for scientists and technicians. It also is authorized to get help from business firms, educational, research or scientific institutions.

ARPA is given authority to acquire or build facilities and equipment for development and test projects. However, existing military facilities "shall be used to the maximum extent practicable," the directive says.

With both the Air Force and the Army racing for a major assignment in the space field, the question had arisen: Which service will provide the crews when space ships are built?

McElroy, replying to that question at a news conference, said: "IN MY JUDGMENT, the operation of manned flight vehicles seems very naturally to fall within the scope of Air Force responsibility." However, he said this could be changed.

At the same news conference, McElroy said the Army has been freed from a 1956 order limiting it to operating missiles of ranges up to 200 miles. That limitation "does not any longer exist," McElroy said.

Explaining the action is intended to give the Army greater field mobility, McElroy said it could be assumed the Army would not "stretch this out to get into a strategic mission."

The Air Force has been assigned the strategic mission of striking at an enemy's homeland and its war-making capacity.

Air Force Gets Nod on Space Ships

GE Electronics Expert To Guide Nation's Satellite Development

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense McElroy has picked a boss for American outer space projects and handed the new Advanced Research Projects Agency its assignment of developing weapons of tomorrow.

He also has decided tentatively that the Air Force should provide crews for future space ships.

Named to head the ARPA was Roy W. Johnson, 52, vice president of the General Electric Co. where he formerly was in charge of electronics.

These developments Friday indicated that the long-delayed Pentagon space agency finally was getting ready for the development of such weapons as military satellites, antimissile missiles and space platforms.

Johnson's appointment came after a weeks-long quest for some executive who would take on the job. He will take over the ARPA post on April 1, when he will resign from General Electric.

McElroy said he still is looking for a "most highly qualified scientist" to head a group to provide technical direction within ARPA.

At a news conference in New York, Johnson said he was not a scientist or a technical man, but an administrator.

Johnson estimated it might take 18 months to two years to get the ARPA running effectively.

The ARPA is intended to coordinate space research in the Defense Department and eliminate interservice rivalry in this field.

New Chill Heads Into Florida

Cattle, Fruit Losses Reported To Be Heavy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Florida, enduring its worst winter in history, braced itself today for new assaults of cold weather on resort and farming industries.

Low temperatures and rain already have killed cattle, blighted lush citrus groves and vegetables and put tourists to flight.

The president of the Florida Cattlemen's Assn. said Friday he had never known cattle to be in such bad shape—with the worst month of the year starting them in the face.

J. O. Pearce Jr., said "February is always our worst winter month," and predicted 275,000 cattle would die in the next five weeks because of lack of feed.

"So far the cattle that have died have died because of the weather, but starvation will enter the picture between now and spring. Cold weather through February would mean a very serious condition around the middle of March," Pearce said.

CATTLE HAVE weakened because Florida's three freezes killed grass. What grass wasn't killed was submerged by water from heavy rains.

Citrus crop losses from the mid-December freeze have been set at a minimum of $26½ million but an industry leader says losses will be offset by higher prices for the remaining crop.

Fruit losses, damage to trees and unemployment present a serious threat to the state economy, said Homer Hooks, general manager of the Florida Citrus Commission.

Hooks said the smaller supply of oranges has jumped the price from $2.50 to $4.50 a box.

The present cold weather found little left to hurt in Florida's lush winter vegetable growing areas near the peninsula's southern tip.

This week's freeze destroyed more than two-thirds of a 15,000-acre tomato crop in Dade (Miami) County, according to county agent Nolan Urre. He estimated a yield of only 30 to 70 per cent on the 4,000 acres not destroyed.

First Baptist Church Open For Initial Services Sunday

Two years of work and planning will be terminated Sunday when the new Circleville First Baptist Church opens its doors for worship for the first time. The church is located on old Route 23 a short distance north of Circleville.

The Rev. Paul J. White will deliver his first sermon in the church at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School is scheduled to get underway at 9:30 a. m.

The new church group got its start two years ago when two families started holding meetings in the local Masonic building.

Since that time the congregation has grown to approximately 60 members.

The north end construction site was selected shortly after the mission initiated its meetings. The church proper was constituted July 8, 1956.

THE NEW structure is being completed through the efforts of skilled members of the church. Final touches to the $28,000 building will be completed in the near future.

Present plans call for additional educational space and a main sanctuary to be built at a later date. The church will have a full program of religious training and education.

The new addition to the local church family is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention. According to local members the work in Ohio is new.

The Baptist Church here is one of 135 churches constructed in the nation during the last six years. In addition there are over 80 missions which will be formed into churches in the near future.

Nationally there are 30,000 Baptist churches with a membership totaling nine million.

By 1964 the Baptists hope to double their preaching station in the Southern Baptist Convention.

Chief Merriman Says February Is Dangerous Traffic Month

Although February means that winter is reaching its final stages, Chief of Police Elmer Merriman today warned that this month usually has more than its share of traffic accidents.

Streets will be slippery on many days during February. On a number of other occasions isolated slippery patches may be encountered. Even a wet pavement increases stopping distances substantially.

The driver who does not reduce his speed accordingly will experience a number of close calls and run a greater risk of being involved in a collision, Chief Merriman said.

Although the days are noticeably longer than they were most of January, periods of poor visibility can be expected. Prudence demands that your car be operated at a speed which will allow it to be stopped in the distance that the driver can see clearly ahead. The law requires that the vehicle be operated at a speed which will permit it to be stopped in the assured clear distance ahead. This is never farther than the limit of clear vision.

ly, as though conditions were good. They do not allow time enough or space enough for the safe crossing of the street, Chief Merriman guessed that some of the collisions with fixed objects might be the result of drivers making a last second attempt to avoid a pedestrian.

Poor traction has another influence on the pedestrian who can't cross as quickly as he could if the street were dry. He may be skidding a bit as he walks. He is likely to be picking his way between puddles and slippery spots. The sight of a pedestrian crossing the street should warn the motorist to prepare to stop, or at least slow down, and make certain that the pedestrian reaches the curb safely.

A number of reports to the Ohio State Safety Council tells of pedestrians who ignore walk signals which have been erected at intersections in many cities.

Merriman points out that where such walk signals are erected the pedestrian movement is governed by these walk signals rather than by the traffic signals. Stay on the curb until the walk signal that you are facing tells you to "walk."

Judges Show Disagreement On Juvenile Crime Reports

COLUMBUS (AP)—The chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court says, if he was a newspaper editor, "I probably would publish the names of juveniles when they are connected with vicious crimes if the publication might possibly result in some good."

Carl W. Weygant, the jurist, further qualified his statement by adding: "If there was any doubt in my mind whether to publish a juvenile's name, my decision probably would be negative."

Weygant's comments were made as he moderated a panel discussion on juvenile delinquency before the Ohio Newspaper Assn. convention Friday.

Participating in the discussion were Albert Woldman, Cuyahoga County Juvenile Court judge; Philip W. Porter, Sunday editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Karl B. Pauly, associate editor of the Ohio State Journal.

Woldman opposed using the names of juvenile delinquents in newspaper stories.

"IT DOESN'T help one iota to publicize the names of the kids involved," the judge said. "It is no deterrent to further crime; it can be harmful and may actually glorify the offenders."

He said: "Newspapers can do a better job by publicizing the good that youngsters do."

Pauly said his newspaper conducted a poll of its readers which showed they favored publication of names of juvenile offenders by a 70-30 margin. Because of this Pauly said, the Journal adopted a policy of using more, rather than fewer, names of such offenders.

He asked: "How can we steer our nation away from the delinquency problem without presenting it factually in our newspapers?"

Porter, however, expressed the belief that juvenile delinquency hasn't increased as much as figures would have one believe. He said better police work and better court records may be responsible for what appears to be an increase in delinquency.

First Baptist Church Open For Initial Services Sunday

Two years of work and planning will be terminated Sunday when the new Circleville First Baptist Church opens its doors for worship for the first time. The church is located on old Route 23 a short distance north of Circleville.

The Rev. Paul J. White will deliver his first sermon in the church at 10:30 a. m. Sunday School is scheduled to get underway at 9:30 a. m.

The new church group got its start two years ago when two families started holding meetings in the local Masonic building.

Since that time the congregation has grown to approximately 60 members.

The north end construction site was selected shortly after the mission initiated its meetings. The church proper was constituted July 8, 1956.

THE NEW structure is being completed through the efforts of skilled members of the church. Final touches to the $28,000 building will be completed in the near future. Present plans call for additional educational space and a main sanctuary to be built at a later date. The church will have a full program of religious training and education.

The new addition to the local church family is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention. According to local members the work in Ohio is new.

The Baptist Church here is one of 135 churches constructed in the nation during the last six years. In addition there are over 80 missions which will be formed into churches in the near future.

Nationally there are 30,000 Baptist churches with a membership totaling nine million.

By 1964 the Baptists hope to double their preaching station in the Southern Baptist Convention.

Chief Merriman Says February Is Dangerous Traffic Month

Although February means that Winter is reaching its final stages Chief of Police Elmer Merriman today warned that this month usually has more than its share of traffic accidents.

Streets will be slippery on many days during February. On a number of other occasions isolated slippery patches may be encountered. Even a wet pavement increases stopping distances substantially.

The driver who does not reduce his speed accordingly will experience a number of close calls and run a greater risk of being involved in a collision, Chief Merriman said.

Although the days are noticeably longer than they were most of January, periods of poor visibility can be expected. Prudence demands that your car be operated at a speed which will allow it to be stopped in the distance that the driver can see clearly ahead. The law requires that the vehicle be operated at a speed which will permit it to be stopped in the assured clear distance ahead. This is never farther than the limit of clear vision.

ANY WET pavement means a splashed wind-shield and head lamps. Quite a few drivers keep the wind-shield fairly clean, recognizing that even a little dirt increases glare and reduces visibility almost to the danger point.

A good many of them neglect to wipe the head lamp lens which gets more splattered than the wind-shield. Clean lenses can increase your seeing ability at night at least 75 per cent.

Poor visibility and poor traction contribute to the pedestrian problem. Walkers expect that drivers can see as far, and stop as quickly, as though conditions were good. They do not allow time enough or space enough for the safe crossing of the street, Chief Merriman guessed that some of the collisions with fixed objects might be the result of drivers making a last second attempt to avoid a pedestrian.

Poor traction has another influence on the pedestrian who can't cross as quickly as he could if the street were dry. He may be skidding a bit as he walks. He is likely to be picking his way between puddles and a slippery spots. The sight of a pedestrian crossing the street should warn the motorist to prepare to stop, or at least slow down, and make certain that the pedestrian reaches the curb safely.

A number of reports to the Ohio State Safety Council tells of pedestrians who ignore walk signals which have been erected at intersections in many cities.

Merriman points out that where such walk signals are erected the pedestrian movement is governed by these walk signals rather than by the traffic signals. Stay on the curb until the walk signal that you are facing tells you to "walk."

The LIMITED...

There's a tingle of excitement in that word limited as long as we're describing a train.

But if we were speaking of the boy—describing the effect which spiritual neglect has on the development of the character of a child—that's a different matter! There's nothing thrilling about a soul that has been limited in its opportunity for religious expression and growth!

The churches of our community are here to give ALL our children religious training . . . to help ALL our families foster a spiritual atmosphere in their homes.

As we make use weekly of the opportunities our churches provide, the potential Christian growth of the child, the family and the Nation becomes UNLIMITED.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. The LIMITED...

There's a tingle of excitement in that word limited as long as we're describing a train.

But if we were speaking of the boy—describing the effect which spiritual neglect has on the development of the character of a child—that's a different matter! There's nothing thrilling about a soul that has been limited in its opportunity for religious expression and growth!

The churches of our community are here to give ALL our children religious training... to help ALL our families foster a spiritual atmosphere in their homes.

As we make use weekly of the opportunities our churches provide, the potential Christian growth of the child, the family and the Nation becomes UNLIMITED.

Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. Tests Can Be Faulty

Many colleges currently are seeking ways to handle the crush of enrollments expected to hit them two or three years from now. One idea being examined is that of restricting enrollments.

Perhaps in this respect it is timely to note the findings of Dean George B. Smith of the University of Kansas in regard to entrance examinations. Barring students who make lower than 50 per cent in them has been proposed by some educators.

Dean Smith collected data on 1,006 graduating seniors of the KU class of 1955. He checked scores made in the American Council of Education psychological examination and the cooperative English test. These tests are usually included in selection batteries, but are used at KU only for guidance.

A total of 208 of the 1,006 graduating seniors checked scored below 50 per cent in both of the exams when they were admitted to KU.

"If restrictions for admission had been applied through the two tests used in this study, 208 graduates would not have been admitted as freshmen if the cutting score of the 50th percentile had been in operation," the dean pointed out.

"The loss to the state and nation would have been 40 teachers, 22 engineers, five journalists, seven lawyers, seven doctors, seven pharmacists and 96 graduates from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the School of Business who majored in areas where the supply of trained manpower is in equally short supply."

He also noted that 29 of the below-50 students were on the dean's scholastic honor roll one semester while two of them were on for six semesters. The group produced one Phi Beta Kappa, a Tau Beta Pi (engineering honorary) and two members of Schem and Mortar Board (men's and women's senior honor organizations). In addition many held positions of leadership in professional groups, clubs, fraternities and sororities.

The point that can be made is that no test of any kind yet devised can measure an individual's determination to earn a degree or to master a course of study. This is something that is outside of the realm of testing.

To limit enrollments on any kind of testing procedure is to deprive society of the benefits of achievement by the many "late bloomers" who only discover the talents within them when some teacher, or perhaps the college system itself, challenges them to extend their reach.

We Need Selective Spending

That runaway inflation would defeat America as certainly as guided missiles has been the contention of leading economists. The Russian bolsheviks counted on the economic collapse of all capitalist countries when they plotted their world revolution 40 years ago.

To combat ruinous inflation the Guaranty Survey, house organ of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York advocates financing stepped up weapons outlays with some of the appropriations that have been diverted to social programs.

"If the sputniks frighten or tempt the free world into undermining its economic strength anew by relaxing the struggle against currency debasement," says the Survey, "they will indeed have won a major victory for Soviet imperialism."

It is a truism that national stability cannot be built on a shaky economic foundation. The cue for America is always to examine its economy critically and adopt practices that will keep it in the soundest condition. If that entails diverting tax funds from non-essentials to essentials, then the nation flirts with ruination if it fails to do so.

It is not the nature of legislative bodies to eliminate established social programs. Members fear voter reprisals. But they need not if they tell the voters why the programs are eliminated.

The American people will always forego luxuries and tighten their belts if such a course is in the national interest. This is a time when leaders of both parties should be telling Americans that the way to security and strength is along the road of selective spending for the programs and materials that the nation needs.

Explorer Impact World-Wide

Whether outer space data being relayed in a never-ending stream, or the "lift" it has given U.S. prestige throughout the world, is the greatest contribution made by Explorer will long be debated.

As the pencil-shaped satellite continues to circle the earth on an elliptical course, its influence is widely felt. In foreign countries, in some of which there was only carping criticism of the U. S. a few days ago, the theme song now is that of course everyone knew all along that what Russia could do Uncle Sam could do better.

Moscow, trying vainly to hold the headlines, has started to dispatch notes, which are all but ignored as Explorer continues to dominate the news.

Not the least effect of the successful launching of an American satellite is the boost to the morale of the personnel of the satellite-missile program. Already there is talk of shooting for the moon at a much earlier date than had formerly been considered feasible.

Too Much Government . . .

By George Sokolsky

The fact that we finally launched the Army Jupiter-C does not mean that we can afford to ignore the necessity for the reorganization of the armed services and the production of military hardware to meet the necessities of the era in which we actually live. That reorganization must continue if we are to out-balance the Russians in this particular area of our conflict with them.

In his testimony before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, Donald Douglas, Sr., made the point that in one service, it was estimated that it took 333 days "to process a facility request," which is a mighty long time for any decision. In that period, a modern war can start, can inflict its damage, and can be over.

So Edwin Weis, the committee counsel, wanted to know why it took so long and Douglas, Sr., replied that there are too many people concerned in making a decision. His son, Donald Douglas, Jr., then stepped in to tell his story. He said:

"Part of the problem on the facility question is that in this fast-moving missile age, when you have to get concrete emplacements and things like this and go through public works that this is another line of action, and we actually built the Thor faster than the concrete was poured at Cape Canaveral to receive it."

In a word, there is a fast-moving weapon but a slow-moving administrative system. And the entire system of supplies, of logistics, requires modernization. Donald Douglas, Jr., testified to certain advantages the Russians had and also of certain facilities that we lacked. For instance:

"... The TU-114 (Russian) is a very, very large airplane which has about twice the ton-knot productivity of the C-133 (American), and this means that it can do a lot more work at more efficient costs."

"In other words, the ton-mile costs of operation should be very low, and it seems to me quite a shame when the United States leads the world in air transportation that we should lose this leadership to the Russians."

The contracting companies, those manufacturing organizations which are able to manufacture the new weapons, face enormous financial problems. Naturally, this is a totally new product and experience in costs is limited. It is a product which has only one customer, the government which can be arbitrary as to both the price and the method of financing.

The industries that are invited to do the work are principally engaged in manufacturing airplanes or scientific equipment. The government determines the price, but it leaves too little money over costs for research by the companies. Donald Douglas, Sr.'s comments on this are most interesting:

"We got together with the Bell Laboratory people about a year before the Thor contract was placed, and we each spent considerable sums of money, I think something well over a million dollars on our own, and entirely speculatively, on what became the Thor."

"We are perfectly prepared to do it if we have the money. But now because of some of the things that have happened, because of some of the findings of a renegotiation board in the last year, our company, and I am quite sure some of the other companies, are finding that they do not have as much surplus to do that sort of thing with."

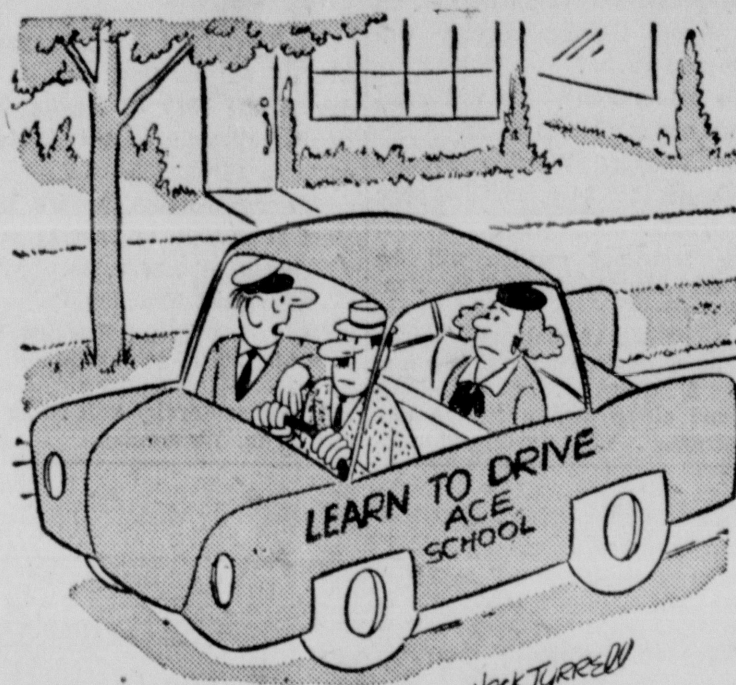

What actually happens is that these private companies are asked to finance the government to a certain extent. This is a loss to the taxpayer because private companies pay more to borrow money than the government has to pay. Ultimately this comes on the taxpayer's bill, no matter how it is arranged. The companies are generally not permitted to charge the interest to the government, but they must calculate it in the price or they would go bankrupt.

Furthermore, they have to figure that when it is all over, there will be a renegotiation in which arbitrary decisions will be made. Every government contractor must anticipate a renegotiation and works his prices accordingly. Renegotiations are costly in time and money, because no businessman can foresee what arbitrary decision the government might make. All these queer business methods of the government, usually designed for political reasons, are expensive and the taxpayer pays.

Nuts to the Birds

SUFFOLK, Va. (P) — Blackbirds went to work and paid back a small portion of the high cost they levy on peanut farmers by eating the crops set out on drying racks. This season the birds showed up after a hard freeze and obligingly pecked away the frozen pods, saving the farmers the expense of painstakingly raking away the useless outside frozen layer from each stack.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A NOTED JOCKEY came to ride at a brand new track out west, but proved a sad disappointment to his followers. In fact, after finishing out of the money in a dozen consecutive races, he was called up before the governing board. "We're wondering what you are up to," frowned the chairman. "Are you using an electric battery on any of the horses you've been riding?"

"Certainly not," maintained the jockey angrily. "I never used a battery in my life!"

"Well," said the head of the track, "I advise you to get one fast. All the other jockeys here are using them."

A Harvard business school statistician estimates there are 90,000 hairs on the average redhead and over 150,000 on blondes. In other words, the chances of a careless Lothario getting a blond hair on his coat lapel are almost twice as great as coming up with a redhead.

Pilot Alcohol Rule OK'd

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Take a tip from the airline pilots when you get into your auto to drive anywhere.

Regulations adopted by the airlines, and supported by the pilots' union, prohibit drinking of alcohol by fliers for 18 hours before flying.

Now the Harvard School of Public Health has looked into the matter pretty thoroughly and recommends a similar rule for commercial drivers. Let me go one step farther and suggest that all drivers, even you motorists, abstain from alcohol for a minimum of 18 hours before climbing into a car to drive.

I'd like to explain why. Alcohol, you see, is eliminated from the blood stream and tissues very, very slowly—at the rate of only one-third of an ounce per hour. And contrary to popular belief, the Harvard investigators say, drinking black coffee or exercising will not speed up this rate.

For example drinking eight highballs over a period of four hours will boost the blood alcohol content to 15 per cent in about two hours after the first drink.

It will remain at this high level for some nine hours. In fact, 14 hours after the final drink, the alcohol level still will be .09 per cent.

Of even greater importance, possibly, is the fact that alcohol is eliminated from the brain and spinal fluid at an even slower rate.

All of which means simply that alcohol reduces a driver's standards of performance and his insight into the quality of his performance.

Or, to put it more bluntly, you can't drive as well, but you don't know you can't.

Question and Answer
T. E.: My brother's eyeballs frequently shift horizontally from one side to another. What can be causing it?

Answer: From your description, it would seem that your brother is suffering from nystagmus.

This may be caused by a vision difficulty, badly-fitting glasses or eyestrain. However, some nervous disorder may also be the cause. Better see your eye doctor.

Bulgarian 'Hooligans' Sentenced to Farms

VIENNA (P) — The communist-controlled Polish National News Agency has reported from Sofia that hundreds of "hooligans" and other "demoralizing youths" have been deported from Bulgarian cities to work on farms.

The Polish agency, quoted in Warsaw newspapers, said a big police drive was being waged against "antisocial" youth.

Polar Flights Routine Now

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Association
Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO—Only a half century since Peary set out for his great trek that made him the first man ever to set foot upon the North Pole, sleek passenger planes of four airlines ply back and forth between West Coast cities and Europe and Scandinavia over the top of the world.

The soft hum of their high flying engines breaks the stillness of the very regions where scant decades ago such intrepid explorers as Amundsen, Nansen, Stefansson and Macmillan toiled to open new trails through the Arctic.

Tucked in snugly by solicitous stewardesses and savoring hot meals to break the monotony of the journey, passengers today wing their way over the howling ice floes where famed Sir John Franklin and his party vanished, never to be heard from again.

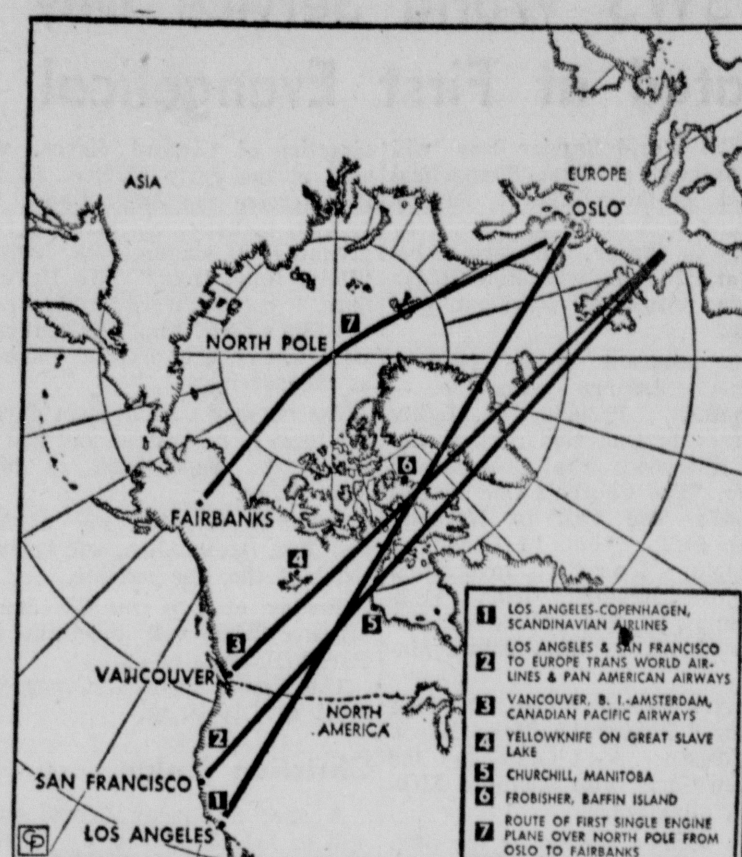

This is one of the most dramatic examples in the world today of everyday citizens being able to outdo the greatest explorers virtually without raising a finger. Many persons still live who remember how the world strained for every shred of news from Peary following his departure from New York in July, 1908, in the ship "Roosevelt."

It finally learned that, on April 6, 1909, accompanied by Henson and four Eskimos, he had hoisted the American flag at the pole with the goal of all ages of exploration reached.

Now regular flights take off from here both on TransWorld Airlines and Pan American World Airways bound for London and Paris across the roof of the world, and Canadian Pacific planes shuttle between Vancouver and Amsterdam via the Arctic regions.

The Scandinavian Airlines system, which pioneered this sensational new service in two exploratory flights over the polar air trail in November, 1952, flies regularly between Los Angeles and Amsterdam. For these four airlines the flight near the North Pole is no novelty; it is absolutely the shortest and best way, as references to any map with a North Pole projection will show.

These commercial flights are the latest chapter in the opening of the North Pole to air traffic, starting with May 9, 1926, when the late Cmdr. Richard E. Byrd of the U. S. Navy flew to the Pole and back from Spitsbergen in 16 hours.

Two days later, Amundsen, with L. Ellsworth and Umberto Nobile, flew over the pole in the Italian-built dirigible "Norge" and dropped his calling card. He later was to perish as a member of the search party that hunted for Nobile's party after the dirigible "Italia" crashed on the ice. Ironically, Nobile and most of his party survived.

Dawn of the modern era of routine commercial flights really was on May 29, 1951, however, when Capt. Charles Blair landed at Fairbanks, Alaska, after the first flight over the North Pole in a single engine plane, flying from Oslo, Norway, in 10 hours and 29 minutes.

Old explorers would rub their eyes in amazement at how this once-remote and forbidding land near the Arctic Circle is being opened up. Great commercial air bases are being built at Yellowknife on Great Slave lake; Churchill, on the west coast of Hudson bay, and Frobisher, once a small fur trading post on Baffin, island opposite Greenland. Passengers taking the arctic route find these to be colorful and bustling centers of activity. The DEW radar defense line forms an arc through them. Eskimos who once furnished their prize dogs to Peary and other explorers, now refuel the silver airliners at Churchill and Frobisher.

Only a few years ago these were isolated settlements which received once-a-year mail service by boat. Now they get air mail from the States and Europe in a matter of hours!

Man's Will Fails To Reveal Wealth

CINCINNATI (P)—The late Edward E. Stokes, who down the years repeatedly denied that he was a millionaire, revealed little about the size of his estate in his will, which was filed Thursday in probate court.

Stokes, 67, died last week. He left only two cash gifts totaling $15,000.

All of his personal property was bequeathed to his daughter, Mrs. Jane S. Hummel. The unestimated remainder of the estate was given to a trust fund under a previously executed agreement. Details were not revealed.

Sex in U.S. Movies Decried by Soviet

MOSCOW (P)—A Soviet official believes sex in American movies and commercials in television programs is a problem that will have to be bridged if the new U. S.-Soviet agreement on cultural exchanges is made to work.

A. A. Kuznetsov, deputy chairman of the Soviet State Committee on Cultural Relations, was one of the negotiators of the Washington accord. He complained of interruptions in TV programs by commercials and objected specifically to "sexual trimmings" which he said in some cases were downright pornographic.

Tests Can Be Faulty

Many colleges currently are seeking ways to handle the crush of enrollments expected to hit them two or three years from now. One idea being examined is that of restricting enrollments.

Perhaps in this respect it is timely to note the findings of Dean George B. Smith of the University of Kansas in regard to entrance examinations. Barring students who make lower than 50 per cent in them has been proposed by some educators.

Dean Smith collected data on 1,006 graduating seniors of the KU class of 1955. He checked scores made in the American Council of Education psychological examination and the cooperative English test. These tests are usually included in selection batteries, but are used at KU only for guidance.

A total of 208 of the 1,006 graduating seniors checked scored below 50 per cent in both of the exams when they were admitted to KU.

"If restrictions for admission had been applied through the two tests used in this study, 208 graduates would not have been admitted as freshmen if the cutting score of the 50th percentile had been in operation," the dean pointed out.

"The loss to the state and nation would

We Need Selective Spending

That runaway inflation would defeat America as certainly as guided missiles has been the contention of leading economists. The Russian bolsheviks counted on the economic collapse of all capitalist countries when they plotted their world revolution 40 years ago.

To combat ruinous inflation the Guaranty Survey, house organ of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York advocates financing stepped up weapons outlays with some of the appropriations that have been diverted to social programs.

"If the sputniks frighten or tempt the free world into undermining its economic strength anew by relaxing the struggle against currency debasement," says the Survey, "they will indeed have won a major victory for Soviet imperialism."

It is a truism that national stability can-

Explorer Impact World-Wide

Whether outer space data being relayed in a never-ending stream, or the "lift" it has given U.S. prestige throughout the world, is the greatest contribution made by Explorer will long be debated.

As the pencil-shaped satellite continues to circle the earth on an elliptical course, its influence is widely felt. In foreign countries, in some of which there was only carping criticism of the U. S. a few days ago, the theme song now is that of course everyone knew all along that what Russia

The fact that we finally launched the Army Jupiter-C does not mean that we can afford to ignore the necessity for the reorganization of the armed services and the production of military hardware to meet the necessities of the era in which we actually live. That reorganization must continue if we are to out-balance the Russians in this particular area of our conflict with them.

In his testimony before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, Donald Douglas, Sr., made the point that in one service, it was estimated that it took 333 days "to process a facility request," which is a mighty long time for any decision. In that period, a modern war can start, can inflict its damage, and can be over.

So Edwin Weis, the committee counsel, wanted to know why it took so long and Douglas, Sr., replied that there are too many people concerned in making a decision. His son, Donald Douglas, Jr., then stepped in to tell his story. He said:

"Part of the problem on the facility question is that in this fast-moving missile age, when you have to get concrete emplacements and things like this and go through public works that this is another line of action, and we actually built the Thor faster than the concrete was poured at Cape Canaveral to receive it."

In a word, there is a fast-moving weapon but a slow-moving

have been 40 teachers, 22 engineers, five journalists, seven lawyers, seven doctors, seven pharmacists and 96 graduates from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the School of Business who majored in areas where the supply of trained manpower is in equally short supply."

He also noted that 29 of the below-50 students were on the dean's scholastic honor roll one semester while two of them were on for six semesters. The group produced one Phi Beta Kappa, a Tau Beta Pi (engineering honorary) and two members of Schem and Mortar Board (men's and women's senior honor organizations). In addition many held positions of leadership in professional groups, clubs, fraternities and sororities.

The point that can be made is that no test of any kind yet devised can measure an individual's determination to earn a degree or to master a course of study. This is something that is outside of the realm of testing.

To limit enrollments on any kind of testing procedure is to deprive society of the benefits of achievement by the many "late bloomers" who only discover the talents within them when some teacher, or perhaps the college system itself, challenges them to extend their reach.

not be built on a shaky economic foundation. The cue for America is always to examine its economy critically and adopt practices that will keep it in the soundest condition. If that entails diverting tax funds from non-essentials to essentials, then the nation flirts with ruination if it fails to do so.

It is not the nature of legislative bodies to eliminate established social programs. Members fear voter reprisals. But they need not if they tell the voters why the programs are eliminated.

The American people will always forego luxuries and tighten their belts if such a course is in the national interest. This is a time when leaders of both parties should be telling Americans that the way to security and strength is along the road of selective spending for the programs and materials that the nation needs.

Not the least effect of the successful launching of an American satellite is the boost to the morale of the personnel of the satellite-missile program. Already there is talk of shooting for the moon at a much earlier date than had formerly been considered feasible.

administrative system. And the entire system of supplies, of logistics, requires modernization. Donald Douglas, Jr., testified to certain advantages the Russians had and also of certain facilities that we lacked. For instance:

"... The TU-114 (Russian) is a very, very large airplane which has about twice the ton-knot productivity of the C-133 (American), and this means that it can do a lot more work at more efficient costs.

"In other words, the ton-mile costs of operation should be very low, and it seems to me quite a shame when the United States leads the world in air transportation that we should lose this leadership to the Russians."

The contracting companies, those manufacturing organizations which are able to manufacture the new weapons, face enormous financial problems. Naturally, this is a totally new product and experience in costs is limited. It is a product which has only one customer, the government which can be arbitrary as to both the price and the method of financing.

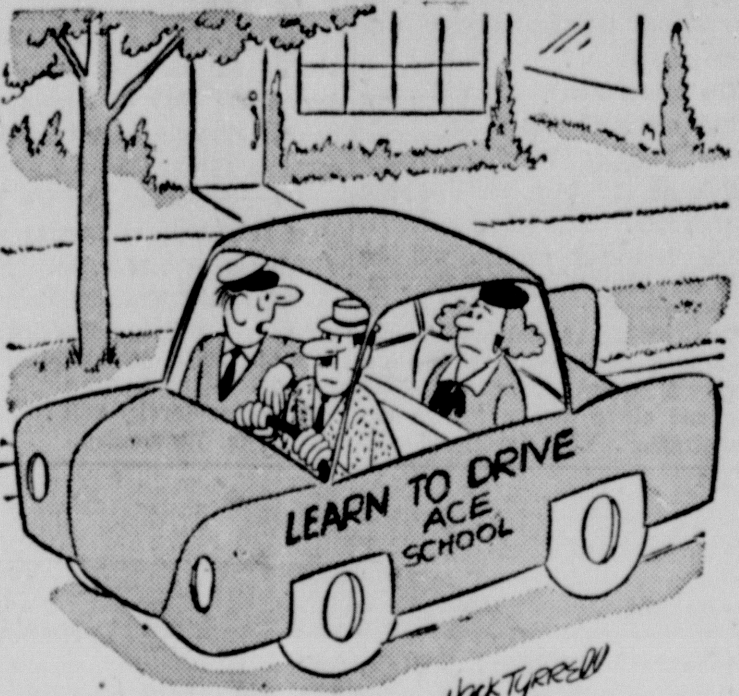

The industries that are invited to do the work are principally engaged in manufacturing airplanes or scientific equipment. The government determines the price, but it leaves too little money over costs for research by the companies. Donald Douglas, Sr.'s comments on this are most interesting:

"We got together with the Bell Laboratory people about a year before the Thor contract was placed, and we each spent con-

A NOTED JOCKEY came to ride at a brand new track out west, but proved a sad disappointment to his followers. In fact, after finishing out of the money in a dozen consecutive races, he was called up before the governing board. "We're wondering what you are up to," frowned the chairman. "Are you using an electric battery on any of the horses you've been riding?"

"Certainly not," maintained the jockey angrily. "I never used a battery in my life!" "Well," said the head of the track, "I advise you to get one up fast. All the other jockeys here are using them."

A Harvard business school statistician estimates there are 90,000 hairs on the average redhead and over 150,000 on blondes. In other words, the chances of a careless Lothario getting a blond hair on his coat lapel are almost twice as great as coming up with a redhead.

Pilot Alcohol Rule OK'd

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Take a tip from the airline pilots when you get into your auto to drive anywhere.

Regulations adopted by the airlines, and supported by the pilots' union, prohibit drinking of alcohol by fliers for 18 hours before flying.

Now the Harvard School of Public Health has looked into the matter pretty thoroughly and recommends a similar rule for commercial drivers. Let me go one step farther and suggest that all drivers, even you motorists, abstain from alcohol for a minimum of 18 hours before climbing into a car to drive.

I'd like to explain why. Alcohol, you see, is eliminated from the blood stream and tissues very, very slowly—at the rate of only one-third of an ounce per hour. And contrary to popular belief, the Harvard investigators say, drinking black coffee or exercising will not speed up this rate.

For example drinking eight highballs over a period of four

Medic Proves Pets 'Good' For Children

CHICAGO — A Florida doctor has a kind word today for the estimated 25 million pet dogs and 35 million pet cats in the country.

They're good for America's kids, said Dr. Hugh A. Carithers of Jacksonville, even if some of them bite or scratch when teased.

He spent 20 months studying the effects on 157 children who had been bitten by one or more of 10 species of animals.

He gave this conclusion: "The joy that millions of children receive from pets, particularly dogs, far outweighs the danger incurred from bites, and diseases that the animals may inflict on them."

He noted no lasting or serious after effects on any child. Although 10 species of pets were included in the studies, most bites were inflicted by dogs.

"To his (the dog's) credit, however, it should be pointed out that the child was usually at fault," Carithers said.

Carithers cautioned: Children should not own pets until they are able to care for them and handle them with discretion. This is unusual before age 6.

Polar Flights Routine Now

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Association
Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO—Only a half century since Peary set out for his great trek that made him the first man ever to set foot upon the North Pole, sleek passenger planes of four airlines ply back and forth between West Coast cities and Europe and Scandinavia over the top of the world.

The soft hum of their high flying engines breaks the stillness of the very regions where scant decades ago such intrepid explorers as Amundsen, Nansen, Stefansson and Macmillan toiled to open new trails through the Arctic.

Tucked in snugly by solicitous stewardesses and savoring hot meals to break the monotony of the journey, passengers today wing their way over the howling ice floes where famed Sir John Franklin and his party vanished, never to be heard from again.

This is one of the most dramatic examples in the world today of everyday citizens being able to out-do the greatest explorers virtually without raising a finger. Many persons still live who remember how the world strained for every shred of news from Peary following his departure from New York in July, 1908, in the ship "Roosevelt."

It finally learned that, on April 6, 1909, accompanied by Henson and four Eskimos, he had hoisted the American flag at the pole with the goal of all ages of exploration reached.

NOW REGULAR flights take off from here both on TransWorld Airlines and Pan American World Airways bound for London and Paris across the roof of the world, and Canadian Pacific planes shuttle between Vancouver and Amsterdam via the Arctic regions.

The Scandinavian Airlines system, which pioneered this sensational new service in two exploratory flights over the polar air trail in November, 1952, flies regularly between Los Angeles and Amsterdam. For these four airlines the flight near the North Pole is no novelty; it is absolutely the shortest and best way, as references to any map with a North Pole projection will show.

These commercial flights are the latest chapter in the opening of the North Pole to air traffic, starting with May 9, 1923, when the late Cmdr. Richard E. Byrd of the U. S. Navy flew to the Pole

Tenzing Norkay, first man to scale mighty Mount Everest, sprained an ankle in a fall on a slope of the Italian Alps. In mountain climbing, like everything else, it's the little ones you have to look out for.

Mawsynram, India, is a tiny town but it sure makes a big splash. It's 1957 rainfall total of 651 inches set a world's record.

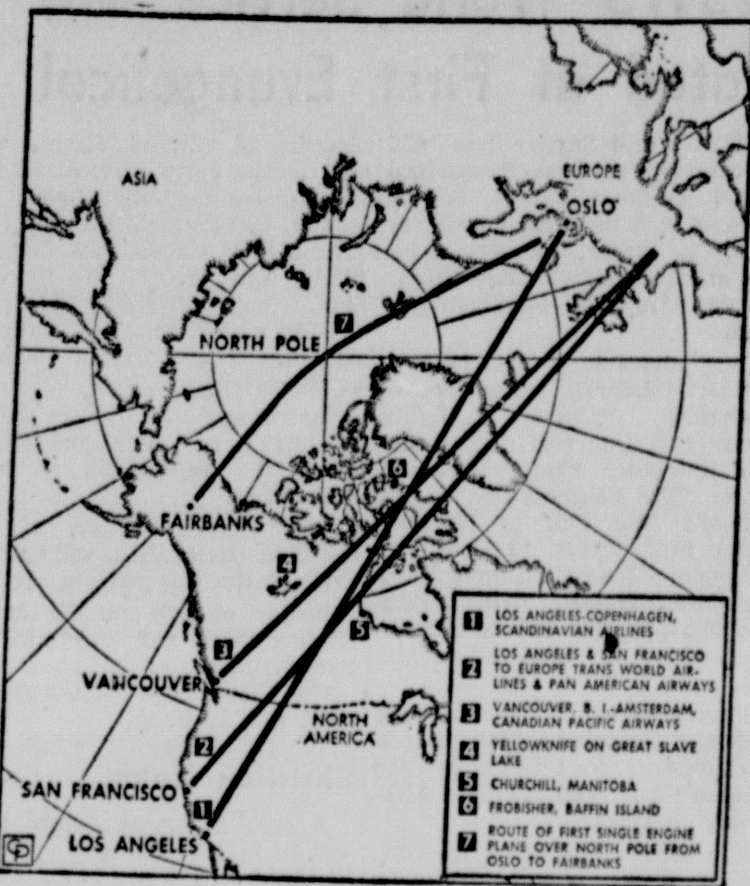

It's estimated the U. S. satellite may stay up there at least 10 years. That's a long time to spend going nowhere.

While assisting an elderly lady across an icy Portland, Me., street, a boy tripped her, snatched her purse and ran away. Maybe, suggests the man at the next desk, he just wanted to make sure of his tip in advance.

The Los Angeles Dodgers will continue to train in Florida. Now, there's a real test of a Californian's baseball loyalty!

On all school maps in Egypt the name "Israel" will be replaced with "Arab Palestine." Now, just who is kidding whom?

Weather may some day be controlled by the setting off of hydrogen bomb blasts, declares a Washington group studying weather. Maybe so—but it sure seems a drastic way of going about it!

Four airlines now have regular passenger flights over the pole.

and back from Spitsbergen in 16 hours.

Two days later, Amundsen, with L. Ellsworth and Umberto Nobile, flew over the pole in the Italian-built dirigible "Norge" and dropped his calling card. He later was to perish as a member of the search party that hunted for Nobile's party after the dirigible "Italia" crashed on the ice. Ironically, Nobile and most of his party survived.

Dawn of the modern era of routine commercial flights really was on May 29, 1951, however, when Capt. Charles Blair landed at Fairbanks, Alaska, after the first flight over the North Pole in a single engine plane, flying from Oslo, Norway, in 10 hours and 29 minutes.

Old explorers would rub their eyes in amazement at how this once remote and forbidding land near the Arctic Circle is being opened up. Great commercial air bases are being built at Yellowknife on Great Slave lake; Churchill, on the west coast of Hudson bay, and Frobisher, once a small fur trading post on Baffin, island opposite Greenland. Passengers taking the arctic route find these to be colorful and bustling centers of activity. The DEW radar defense line forms an are through them. Eskimos who once furnished their prize dogs to Peary and other explorers, now refuel the silver airliners at Churchill and Frobisher.

Only a few years ago these were isolated settlements which received once-a-year mail service by boat. Now they get air mail from the States and Europe in a matter of hours!

All of his personal property was bequeathed to his daughter, Mrs. Jane S. Hummel. The unestimated remainder of the estate was given to a trust fund under a previously executed agreement. Details were not revealed.

IF MOTHER HAS put a ban on heavy make-up, a teen-age beauty can glamorize her eyes by applying a colorless eye pomade that will make her lashes appear silky and lustrous.

EYES on the FUTURE

Teen queens must get by with a minimum of make-up. It's the rule for budding beauties. Heavily rouged and painted, fresh young faces do not look pretty! It poses some problems.

"How," asked one pretty miss, "can I emphasize my eyes when Mother says 'positively no mascara or eye shadow'?"

It can be done!

Until that future date when mascara's permitted, use a colorless pomade on lashes. It will give them sheen.

But pomade's just part of the treatment. Apply it as first step in your eye-beautifying program.

Next, slip lashes through an eyelash curler, squeeze the handles, count ten or fifteen, let lashes go. They'll be tilted upward in glamorous way.

Curly lashes are all important if eyes are to look bright and shiny. The lashes control the amount of light which enters and is reflected from your eyes. When they're curled, more light enters and shines out. Thus eyes are brighter.

Use the kind of curler which has pads that snap out easily and can thus be quickly released. You'll find it's simple to operate and, if lashes are short, it will make them appear much, much longer!

Groom brows carefully, too. Bushy ones are unruly! Straggly brows look sloppy.

Use a scissor-handled tweezer (it's easy to grasp) to do a neat weeding job. Follow the natural brow line. Don't alter it. Just clean away hairs from beneath and between brows. Never tweeze along the top line.

Use a tiny brush to groom brows into a neat line. Appl' pomade with a fingertip to give them lustre.

The pomade, the curling and the tweezing add up to wide-eyed beauty that will win Mom's approval because they glamorize eyes, but in a very natural-looking way!

IF MOTHER HAS put a ban on heavy make-up, a teen-age beauty can glamorize her eyes by applying a colorless eye pomade that will make her lashes appear silky and lustrous.

EYES on the FUTURE

Teen queens must get by with a minimum of make-up. It's the rule for budding beauties. Heavily rouged and painted, fresh young faces do not look pretty! It poses some problems.

"How," asked one pretty miss, "can I emphasize my eyes when

KEEP EYEBROWS neat by weeding away with tweezers.

Mother says 'positively no mascara or eye shadow'?

It can be done! Until that future date when mascara's permitted, use a colorless pomade on lashes. It will give them sheen.

But pomade's just part of the treatment. Apply it as first step in your eye-beautifying program.

Next, slip lashes through an eyelash curler, squeeze the handles, count ten or fifteen, let lashes go. They'll be tilted upward in glamorous way.

Curly lashes are all important if eyes are to look bright and shiny. The lashes control the amount of light which enters and is reflected from your eyes. When they're curled, more light enters and shines out. Thus eyes are brighter.

Use the kind of curler which has pads that snap out easily and can thus be quickly released. You'll find it's simple to operate and, if lashes are short, it will make them appear much, much longer!

Groom brows carefully, too. Bushy ones are unruly! Straggly brows look sloppy.

Use a scissor-handled tweezer (it's easy to grasp) to do a neat weeding job. Follow the natural brow line. Don't alter it. Just clean away hairs from beneath and between brows. Never tweeze along the top line.

Use a tiny brush to groom brows into a neat line. Appl. pom-

ade with a fingertip to give them lustre.

The pomade, the curling and the tweezing add up to wide-eyed beauty that will win Mom's approval because they glamorize eyes, but in a very natural-looking way!

Darby Clinches Pickaway Title With 69-66 Win

Darby won the Pickaway County League basketball title last night with a tough 69-66 triumph over arch-rival Scioto. The smaller Buffalo unit scared the Trojans before it was over.

Scioto tried in vain to retaliate for last year's defeat by Darby but the buzzer cut short its rally. Last year the unbeaten Buffalos met Darby in the final league game and the Trojans made "mince meat of Scioto" to throw the Buffs into a first place tie with Ashville.

Over 600 fans were conscious of the avenging Buffalos battle last night but the famous Darby jump shots brought about their downfall.

Scioto chalked up a 26-17 first quarter lead as its explosive power wrought havoc upon the Trojans. The little Buffalos, Roger Knapp, the county's leading scorer, and Dickie Melvin, rose to the challenge last night as they drove for scores right through the Darby defenses.

Tommy Walters kept the Trojans in the game in the first period as he tallied six points on a center jump shot from around the foul circle. The Buffalos continued to lead at halftime, 40-37, but Darby narrowed the margin as Gary Wardell took up the second period scoring where cohort Walters left off.

ACCORDING to both coaches the home team advantage was lost last night as the overflow crowd spilled onto the floor and the court took on the appearance of an oblong egg. People rounded each corner and handicapped the driving corner shots of Darby's Ned Musselman and Scioto's Knapp.

In the third quarter the bigger and more experienced Trojans overtook the lead and began piling up a margin on the steady play of Musselman and Ronny Guthrie. At the third quarter mark Darby led 55-49 as Scioto could only manage nine points to Darby's 18.

Personals took their toll in the fourth period as Scioto lost its left center, Gary Clark, guard Bill Whiteside, and later on Melvin. Darby lost its potent scoring pair, Guthrie and Musselman late in the final period and held on for "dear life" till the end.

John Drummond, the last big man on the floor was the difference during the final minutes as he rebounded well for Darby and held the ball out of Scioto's reach until a teammate was in the clear. The crowd, largest in Darby history, witnessed some excellent free throw shooting as Scioto hit 16 of 24 chances for a 66 per cent average. Darby hit 17 of 25 for a 68 per cent average.

Knapp led the scoring with 23 points closely followed by Melvin with 21. The Trojan scoring was evenly divided as Guthrie led with 15 followed by Walters and Wardell with 14 apiece.

Owls Win 15 Straight But Recall Stomping Suffered Last Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chances are Harry Litwack's Temple Owls, in the midst of college basketball's longest current winning streak, would like nothing better than another crack at Cincinnati's Bearcats, hotshot Oscar Robertson and all.

It has taken the streak, now standing at 15 after Friday night's 89-53 rout of Seton Hall, for the rating experts to warm up to a Temple team that has this bugaboo in its case history:

That whumping from Oscar and Co. is the only serious blot on the Temple record, although two days before the Owls were nipped 85-83 in double overtime at Lexington by Kentucky.

Since then it has been nothing but success for Temple, triggered by Guy Rodgers, a backcourt scorer, rebounder and feeder pro coaches will tell you could become another Bob Cousy.

Rodgers had the 10th-ranked Owls rolling Friday night with 26 points in a limited appearance in one of two games involving members of The Associated Press' top 10. In the other, eighth-ranked Maryland kept in the running for the Atlantic Coast Conference title, defeating Virginia 87-66.

Dartmouth won its sixth straight in Ivy League competition, whipping Cornell 58-45 for a 15-1 record, and the jumbled situation in the Skyline Conference

Johnson, Pacher Hit for 23 Points

By PAUL SMALLWOOD
Herald Staff Writer

Circleville shook its midweek slump to go on a scoring rampage in downing Greenfield, 75-62, last night in the local gym.

After suffering their coldest night of the season in Tuesday's loss to Waverly, the CHS forces came back last night to give the nets a real going over.

The Tiger cagers banded away to collect 31 buckets in 65 attempts for a sparkling 47.6 per cent average. Against Waverly the locals compiled a dismal 18.4 per cent.

Greenfield had 75 chances at the hoop but hit only 26 times for a 34.6 average. Circleville tallied 13 foul shots in 21 attempts and McClain hit 10 of 18.

CIRCLEVILLE started with a flourish, picked up steam in the second quarter and coasted in during the second half.

The Tigers jumped out in front, 21-11 at the end of the first quarter, were far out in the lead at halftime, 45-28, and commanded a 61-40 margin at the three quarter mark.

THE WIN gives Circleville a record of nine wins and even losses. The CHS cagers stand third in the South Central Ohio League with a 4-3 mark.

Although Greenfield trailed throughout, little guard Jim Polk kept them in the game with some fancy shooting. His side shots and drive-ins were good for 20 points.

Teammate John Fenner assisted with 12 and Dave Pyle finished with 10.

Coach John Current's Kittens ran into a little difficulty, dropping the reserve contest, 33-29.

The tilt ended in a flurry of excitement. With about two minutes remaining the score was knotted at 28-28. However, Greenfield managed to squeeze in five points while the Kittens battled for only one.

The score was close all the way. At halftime the visitors were ahead, 13-11 and 22-21 at the third quarter mark.

JAKE Bailey was high for Circleville with 11 points, Junior Deny collected nine. Coleman was high for Greenfield with nine.

The Tigers are scheduled to take a rest until Friday when they travel to Hillsboro for a final league test. They end the season the following Friday when Logan comes here.

Bill Johnson and big Jon Pacher came through in fine style for the Tigers. Both displayed some accurate shooting for 23 points each. In addition the two stalwarts turned in some good defensive play, consistently cleaning both bankboards.

It was Pacher's highest point production this season. He accomplished the feat by hitting 11 buckets in 15 attempts, a good night's work for any cager. Johnson's effort came on eight buckets in 23 tries and seven foul shots.

Don Rowland again found the range to drop in some of his deadly long set shots. He ended the evening with 10 points.

Coach Dick Boyd played all 12 of the players who dressed for the game. After building a 21-point lead in the third frame, Coach Boyd emptied the bench and his replacements played the Greenfield forces on better than even terms.

THE WIN gives Circleville a record of nine wins and even losses. The CHS cagers stand third in the South Central Ohio League with a 4-3 mark.

L'ville Halted By Carbon Hill

Visitors Post 75-71 Decision

Laurelville dropped its fourth game of the season and second in the Hocking County League in invading Carbon Hill by a 75-71 score last night.

Plagued by the flu bug, Coach Lonnie Miller's crew put up a game struggle but couldn't get over the hump. The Laurelville quieted had posted an early season 73-67 win over the same Carbon Hill outfit.

The losers played without the services of John Reid and Wendell Frazier.

Laurelville rolled to a 17-15 first quarter advantage but couldn't maintain the pace. Carbon Hill went out in front, 38-37, at halftime and increased this margin to 56-50 at the three quarter mark.

LAURELVILLE had five men in double figures. Dave Pritchard and Gary Allen each posted 17 points. Tom Eveland camp up with 16, Mickey Young tallied 11 and Dave Hinton notched 10.

However, this balanced offensive was not enough to cope with 28 by speedy little Mike Devo who scorched the nets for 28 points. Courtney proved to be a valuable teammate with 21 and Corby and McManaway each fired for 12.

Laurelville clinched at least a tie in the Hocking County reserve league by swamping the visitors, 35-13, in the preliminary tilt.

Warriors Roll In 2nd Half For 67-52 Win

Saltcreek's Warriors, utilizing a tight man-to-man defense, routed Good Hope, 67-52, last night at Saltcreek.

Although the visitors held a 10-9 first quarter lead, it didn't take Coach Bob Sanders' cagers long to find a winning combination.

Still trailing, 26-19, at halftime, the Warriors came back with a mighty 26-point third period surge. Good Hope tallied only nine in this frame so the score read 45-35 in favor of the host quintet.

Saltcreek maintained the pace in the fourth chapter to roll on for 22 more points while holding Good Hope to 17.

GARY Valentine, the Warriors' left-handed scoring ace, turned in some fancy shooting for 27 points. His effort almost was equaled by Jim Jordan who collected 20.

Bonecutter was high for Good Hope with 19. Overly posted nine and Osborne and Brown each had eight.

Stoutsville Handed Loss In 65-53 Tilt

Stoutsville last night lost its 10th game of the year to a hard-luck Thurston squad, 65-53.

The Indians met a competent and potent league opponent, Thurston, which won its second league game last night while it has dropped eight. Four of its losses have been by two, three, four points, plus an overtime. Last week Thurston dropped a 90-88 game to Fairfield league champion Pleasantville who went undefeated in league play.

Thurston piled up its points in the first half as it led 15-6 at the first quarter mark and 38-20 at halftime. Led by the scoring of Ron Ramsey, one of the leading scorers in the state with a 32-plus average, the Thurston lads overpowered the Indians with their accuracy.

Stoutsville's center men Ray Reinhold and Jim Cole were tied up under the bucket by Thurston forward Bowman who stands 6-7. Ramsey plays the center slot for Thurston and tallied 19 points in the first half as Stoutsville couldn't devise a defense to stop the ace scoring threat.

In the second half the Indians had a man in back and a man in front of Ramsey and he still managed to tally 15 points. All of Ramsey's points came from within six feet of the bucket. Thurston led 50-33 at the end of the third quarter.

RANDALL CRITES was the man the Indians shouted about last night as he scored 14 points with his favorite side set shot. Don Morrison scored nine points followed by Reinhold and Richard Bussert seven apiece for the Indians.

Ramsey helped his 30.4 league average with 34 points on 14 field goals and six free throws. Bowman followed with 12, as Thurston concentrated on feeding Ramsey. Love was especially effective in passing into the bucket sizzler.

The Stoutsville reserves registered a 46-36 victory over Thurston to win the Fairfield County reserve championship outright, and gave Stoutsville rosters pleasant thoughts for the future.

Lopes Now Seeking Bout with Rosi

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Joey Lopes was a happy little boxer today, not necessarily on the basis of his 10 - round performance against Cuba's Damaso Collazo Friday night, but because he scored his first television triumph.

"It was the happiest moment of my life," the lightweight said after scoring a unanimous decision.

The 5 foot 5 slugger said he was hopeful a match could be arranged in March with Paolo Rosi, ex-Italian lightweight champion, who was to have been Lopes' opponent Friday night. Rosi was scratched because of an injury.

Thirteen of the 18 members of North Dakota's freshman basketball team were captains of their high school teams.

Mario Guley entered his eighth season as Syracuse basketball coach with a 93-63 record.

Kingston Wins Over Buckskin

Kingston turned in a good performance last night in downing invading Buckskin, 78-61.

Some outstanding play by Larry Large and Arnold Bee gave Coach Gary Walsh's cagers all the incentive they needed for a victory. Large earned scoring laurels for the evening with 26 points on six buckets and 14 foul shots. Bee chalked 11 markers and came through with some able defensive work.

Trailing 34-26 at halftime, the Redskins roared back in the third quarter to score nine straight points for a margin which they retained the rest of the evening.

A total of 53 fouls was called in the contest. Kingston tallied 30 points at the free throw line and Buckskin registered 17. The winners hit 20 of 24 charity tosses in the second half.

MICK proved to be a dangerous man for Buckskin, collecting 21 points. Teammate Irons collected 15.

Much credit for the win goes to the capable rebounding of the Redskins. They cleaned the board 35 times on defense and 25 times on offense.

Buckskin won the reserve test in a 38-37 thriller.

Centralia Tops Bainbridge by 84-69 Margin

Centralia had little trouble in handing Bainbridge an 84-69 defeat on the losers' court last night.

Little Bobby Shaw of Centralia had a field day as he hit for 39 points, his highest total of the season. The Ross County fireball went into the contest with an 18.7 average per game. His former high was 35 against Southeastern three weeks ago.

Big Floyd Myers probably played his best game of the season by zipping in 29 points and grabbing 29 rebounds. His defensive play was instrumental in the win.

Centralia zoomed to a 20-13 first quarter lead and was never headed from that point on. The score read 38-26 at intermission and 61-48 at the end of the third quarter.

BAINBRIDGE, far from being a pushover, had four men hitting for 13 points or better. Don Stevens led the losing effort with 22. Thompson had 17, Wiley 14 and Robinson 13.

Centralia made it a double sweep by posting a 54-19 victory in the reserve tilt.

Milers Plotting Against Delany

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Delany, the Villanova Irishman, goes after his 19th straight mile triumph on boards tonight in the Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden.

The milers seem to have reached agreement on the best way to draw him out. They have decided to try to get so far ahead of him in the last two laps that his famous finishing kick will be neutralized.

Lined up against the Olympic 1,500-meter champion in the Wanamaker Mile will be George King of the New York Athletic Club, Jim Beatty, recent North Carolina graduate; Burr Grim of Maryland, and Phil Coleman, Chicago.

Jimmy Moore of Cleveland is a member of the 200 club in the American Hockey League. He scored his 200th point in league play against Springfield.

Bonnie Graham is coaching the University of Mississippi basketball team for the seventh season.

Ashville Tops Walnut Five, 76-56, In Teays Valley Tilt

By J. I. SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

The "Teays Valley Tussle" took place last night in the Pickaway County Coliseum between the Ashville Broncos and the Walnut Tigers with Ashville coming out on top, 76-56.

This was the grudge battle of the year between two schools and over 1,300 fans were on hand to witness the fireworks. The contest was close until early in the third quarter when Ashville got away with several fast breaks and Walnut turnovers to take a 43-29 lead.

Many fans thought that this was "all she wrote" for the scrappy Tigers, but they were surprised as Walnut fought back to within seven points, before falling by the wayside once and for all.

Early in the fourth quarter the Broncos poured on the coal and ran away with the victory as the "Bronco Busters" had too many horses for the smaller and less experienced Tigers. The biggest difference in the two teams was the middle. Ash

Athletics Expect Top Level Finish

By HARRY CRAFT
Kansas City Manager

KANSAS CITY (AP) — We are looking forward to a far more interesting Kansas City team than we had in the past three years. Our greatest weakness last season was in the outfield which was very mediocre in defense. There was no speed.

The picture improved somewhat with the rise of Woody Held. His speed and range, his strong arm and desire to cover the whole outfield improved this department immensely. Now we have Bill Tuttle, Jim Small and Bob Martyn in the outfield.

The acquisition of these three gives our outfield something we lacked last year — speed, range and arms.

As a result, our pitching should look better. In fact, it did late last season.

Duke Maas, acquired from Detroit, should fit right in. We have some very fine holdovers in Ralph Terry, Jack Urban, Ned Garver, Alex Kellner, Virgil Trucks and Wally Burnette and we have promising newcomers in George Brunet, Walt Craddock and others.

But our need for a good hitter or two is acute. In all honesty, we cannot be considered a pennant contender. Our immediate goal is a first division berth.

Maas will certainly help our pitching and could be our No. 1

man. John Tsitouris, also from the Tigers, is still a question mark.

It should be an interesting season. If we don't finish in the first division it certainly won't be on account of lack of desire or hustle.

New Holland Clips Jackson In 81-62 Tilt

The New Holland Bulldogs tied for third place in the Pickaway County basketball league last night with a 81-62 win over Jackson.

The Bulldogs played without the services of ace John Lininger who sprained an ankle earlier in the week. But Coach Robert Melick said Lininger would be ready to go by tournament time.

Even with the loss of "Big John" the Bulldogs didn't have to worry long because reserve center Nelson Bocharad tallied 26 points to lead the scoring for both teams. Bocharad's previous high evening was three points against Pickaway.

Combined with the surprising new threat, Bocharad, was the set shot shooting of Kenny Speakman from the outside. Kenny realized that with the loss of Lininger he must shoot more often and he did for 21 points on nine field goals and three charity tosses.

Jackson scored 62 points against a team that has a defensive average of 42.4 points per game. New Holland led 19-15 at the end of the first quarter. They got rolling in the second period, scoring 24 points to the Wildcats' 11.

WITHOUT THE defensive prowess of Lininger, the Bulldogs concentrated on offense and allowed Jackson's Dick Carpenter 23 and Charlie Galloway, 18, pepper the bucket from the outside. The Wildcats were handicapped due to loss of Loren Alexander last week and only managed 11 points in the third quarter as New Holland tallied 17 to take a 60-37 lead.

Relaxing the final period, New Holland was outscored 25-21, but wrapped up league victory No. 7 which was good for a third place tie with Scioto. The Bulldogs are 13-3 on the season. Jackson lost its seventh league game and finished in an eighth place tie with Pickaway. The Wildcats are 4-13 on the year.

The New Holland reserves won their ninth league victory 72-43 over Jackson and therefore won the County championship with a 9-1 record. The Bulldogs' Large, with 27 points, was just too much for the Wildcats as he hit from all over the court. Puffinberger had 20 and Wood, 10, to follow teammate Large in the New Holland scoring. Timmons with 13 and Whaley, 11, led the Jackson scoring.

Deers Thump Pirates, 61-51

Williamsport, riding on the strength of 23 points by Dave Myers and 20 by Eddie James, overpowered Pickaway last night, 61-51. The game was a homecoming tilt at Pickaway.

The Pirates lost the game at the foul line. Each team fired for 19 buckets but the Deercracker cagers capitalized on 23 foul shots while Pickaway connected for 13.

The game was close all the way. Williamsport led, 16-12, at the close of the first quarter and 34-31 at halftime. The Deers pulled away in the third stanza by outscoring the host five, 18-10, and managed to stay above water until the final gun.

Myers and James did most of the damage for Williamsport while Keith Sheets and Eddie Evans were mainstays for the Pirates. Sheets netted 13 points and Evans had 12.

PICKAWAY started fast by gaining a five point lead in the first quarter. However, the Deers soon found the range to go out front where they stayed for the remainder of the evening.

Williamsport made it a double win by taking the reserve contest, 27-22.

Monroe Gets First Win

Monroe won its first cage contest in over two years last night with a 50-43 decision over Atlanta. The tilt was at Monroe.

The Monroe squad pleased a large homecoming crowd in downing the Red Raiders. Monroe led throughout although Atlanta made a strong bid in the third quarter to even things up.

After holding a 29-18 halftime lead, the Indians had to stave off an Atlanta uprising which narrowed the score to 35-34 when the third quarter buzzer sounded.

Monroe settled things in the fourth frame by hitting for 15 points while Atlanta could manage only nine.

LARRY Bigam, hitting well on long set shots, paced the Indians with 16 points. Frank Blair came through with nine.

Buzz Gerhardt of Atlanta earned scoring honors for the evening with 20 points. Larry Martin collected 10.

Monroe won the preliminary, 36-34.

Pay-as-You-See TV Test Is Scheduled in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—A hint of things to come can be seen in the new agreement between Jim Norris, president of Madison Square Garden, and the International Telemeter Corp. for experimental pay-as-you-see TV.

At the present, this experiment. A group of men in a Chicago hotel room will watch a fight from the Midwest Gym in Chicago on Tuesday night. The Telemeter or coin-in-the-slot system will be used.

The agreement between Norris and the TV system is supposed to cover "important programs not now shown on free TV such as amateur basketball games, ice shows, the circus and others" according to the announcement.

But Champion, publicity director for Paramount Pictures of which Telemeter is a subsidiary, said a "sample town," probably in the Midwest, would be set up "very soon, perhaps by June" to test the system. Movies and local sports programs would be used, he said.

Champion said the system transmitted its pictures by wire and claimed approval by the Federal Communications Commission was not necessary. The FCC and Congress currently are considering the entire pay-as-you-see TV field, "It probably will cost about

By HARRY CRAFT
Kansas City Manager

KANSAS CITY (AP) — We are looking forward to a far more interesting Kansas City team than we had in the past three years. Our greatest weakness last season was in the outfield which was very mediocre in defense. There was no speed.

The picture improved somewhat with the rise of Woody Held. His speed and range, his strong arm and desire to cover the whole outfield improved this department immensely. Now we have Bill Tuttle, Jim Small and Bob Martyn in the outfield.

The acquisition of these three gives our outfield something we lacked last year — speed, range and arms.

As a result, our pitching should look better. In fact, it did late last season.

Duke Maas, acquired from Detroit, should fit right in. We have some very fine holdovers in Ralph Terry, Jack Urban, Ned Garver, Alex Kellner, Virgil Trucks and Wally Burnette and we have promising newcomers in George Brunet, Walt Craddock and others.

But our need for a good hitter or two is acute. In all honesty, we cannot be considered a pennant contender. Our immediate goal is a first division berth.

Maas will certainly help our pitching and could be our No. 1

man. John Tsitouris, also from the Tigers, is still a question mark.

It should be an interesting season. If we don't finish in the first division it certainly won't be on account of lack of desire or hustle.

New Holland Clips Jackson In 81-62 Tilt

The New Holland Bulldogs tied for third place in the Pickaway County basketball league last night with a 81-62 win over Jackson.

The Bulldogs played without the services of ace John Lininger who sprained an ankle earlier in the week. But Coach Robert Melick said Lininger would be ready to go by tournament time.

Even with the loss of "Big John" the Bulldogs didn't have to worry long because reserve center Nelson Bochart tallied 26 points to lead the scoring for both teams. Bochart's previous high evening was three points against Pickaway.

Combined with the surprising new threat, Bochart, was the set shot shooting of Kenny Speakman from the outside. Kenny realized that with the loss of Lininger he must shoot more often and he did for 21 points on nine field goals and three charity tosses. Jackson scored 62 points against a team that has a defensive average of 42.4 points per game. New Holland led 19-15 at the end of the first quarter. They got rolling in the second period, scoring 24 points to the Wildcats' 11.

WITHOUT THE defensive prowess of Lininger, the Bulldogs concentrated on offense and allowed Jackson's Dick Carpenter 23 and Charlie Galloway, 18, pepper the bucket from the outside. The Wildcats were handicapped due to loss of Loren Alexander last week and only managed 11 points in the third quarter as New Holland tallied 17 to take a 60-37 lead.

Relaxing the final period, New Holland was outscored 25-21, but wrapped up league victory No. 7 which was good for a third place tie with Scioto. The Bulldogs are 13-3 on the season. Jackson lost its seventh league game and finished in an eighth place tie with Pickaway. The Wildcats are 4-13 on the year.

The New Holland reserves won their ninth league victory 72-43 over Jackson and therefore won the County championship with a 9-1 record. The Bulldogs' Large, with 27 points, was just too much for the Wildcats as he hit from all over the court. Puffinberger had 20 and Wood, 10, to follow teammate Large in the New Holland scoring. Timmons with 13 and Whaley, 11, led the Jackson scoring.

Monroe won its first game contest in over two years last night with a 50-43 decision over Atlanta. The tilt was at Monroe.

The Monroe squad pleased a large homecoming crowd in downing the Red Raiders. Monroe led throughout although Atlanta made a strong bid in the third quarter to even things up. After holding a 29-18 halftime lead, the Indians had to stave off an Atlanta uprising which narrowed the score to 35-34 when the third quarter buzzer sounded.

Monroe settled things in the fourth frame by hitting for 15 points while Atlanta could manage only nine.

LARRY Bigam, hitting well on long set shots, paced the Indians with 16 points. Frank Blair came through with nine.

Buzz Gerhardt of Atlanta earned scoring honors for the evening with 20 points. Larry Martin collected 10.

Monroe won the preliminary, 36-34.

Donald's Voice From Mild Man

By RALPH FRIEDMAN
Central Press Association
Correspondent

GLENDAL, Calif.—The raspy, saucy voice of "Donald Duck" belongs to a cheerfully modest grandfather — Clarence Nash. He has been "Donald's" one and only voice for almost a quarter of a century, when that irrepressible character was first introduced to the screen by Walt Disney.

Nash took to keeping pets and imitating them while "till a strip-ling in Oklahoma. These included coyotes, raccoons, skunks, ponies, birds and barnyard fowl. When he was 13, and the family had moved to western Missouri, Clarence acquired a billy goat which he fed on a bottle, and which, indirectly, started him on the road to his unique career.

"Whenever I left the goat he cried just like a baby," recalls Nash, "and I began to imitate him. One day I figured — if I could put words to the sound I'd have another voice in my mouth."

At 17, Clarence quit high school and hiked into Kansas City to apply for a job on the Horner-Redpath chautauqua circuit and lyceum as a mandolin player. Told that each performer was required to have two skills, he replied that he could imitate birds. He was hired.

DURING The first year, the company discovered that Clarence could recite "Mary Had a Little Lamb" in a "lamb-voice." He was given a whopping $5 a week boost and told to include the recitation in his act.

When the circuit folded, Nash got an office job in northern California, where he met his wife. They were married in San Francisco, and a month later Clarence was out of work again. So they headed for Los Angeles.

Los Angeles was cold to Nash. Jobs were scarce. The tide turned, however, when Nash was offered employment by a dairy. For three years he was "Whistling Clarence, the Birdman," entertaining at schools, clubs and lodges.

One night, in 1933, spurred on by friends who felt he ought to be on radio, he hid himself to a station and offered to work for free. That night Walt Disney heard him and suggested an audition. Clarence did the usual "Mary Had a Little Lamb," followed by imitations of quacking ducks. Disney blurted out, "Gee, there's a talking duck!" (Since then, "Mary" etc., has been done in duck-tongue.

Nash went on the Disney payroll, and the year following, "Donald Duck" made the first of his more than 100 screen appearances. Nash has done a multitude of sounds for Disney cartoons: bird imitations, crickets, frogs, horses, dogs, cats and seals. However, most of his work has been with his smart-alecky, feathered sidekick. He has been "Donald's" tongue in English, Spanish, French, Dutch, Italian, German and Swedish.

Three years ago Nash and his wife purchased a feed and seed store in Glendale. When he's not at the Disney studio he's at the store, waiting on customers or exchanging imitations with the neighboring kids.

Fayette Slaying May Be Solved by Man's Confession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rape-slaying of an 87-year-old widow near here last summer may be close to solution.

Sheriff Orland Hays left Friday for Richmond, Va., to question a Negro who, authorities there say, has admitted killing six persons in recent years. The slayings allegedly occurred in Ohio, Alabama, Georgia and Virginia.

Virginia state police said Jeremiah McCray, 25, told how he and another man used a hammer to kill an elderly woman "in a white farm house with a green roof" near Columbus, Ohio, about July 1, 1957.

Police identified this victim as Mrs. Sarah DeWitt, a widow hacked to death with a hatchet in the upstairs bedroom of her six-room house on Ohio 62, about three miles north of here, last July 2.

P&G Hearings Due In Various Cities

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Federal Trade Commission hearing on monopoly law violation charges against the Procter & Gamble Co. will start moving around the country next month.

Presentation of testimony and exhibits here was ended Thursday and FTC Examiner Everett F. Hayercraft said the next hearing would be in San Francisco beginning April 15. Other phases of the investigation will be conducted later in Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, New York and perhaps in a southern city.

Procter & Gamble is accused of having violated the anti-monopoly laws when it bought the Clorox Chemical Co., last August.

Fence-Mending Back Home Is Hard on Solons' Wives

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional wives were glad to get back to the capital after spending most of the summer in their home districts. They were tired, they told me, and "needed a rest."

Fence-mending, keeping up contacts, making new friends and "cutting down the opposition," they contend, adds up to much harder work in the off years than the most rigorous campaigning they do in election years.

"It was hectic," exclaimed Mrs. Clifford Davis, wife of the Democratic House member from Tennessee. "I came back worn out. During the 'on year' everybody knows what you're after. You get lots of invitations. It's much easier."

Mrs. Thomas G. Abernethy said she accompanied her husband, the Democratic congressman from Mississippi, to every nook and cranny of his 100-mile-wide, 240-mile-long district and attended a mammoth barbecue given by 14 counties in one ball park.

"They put an ad in the paper and said 'you-all come!' and they did," she said. "They had a band playing and barbecued 13 cows."

"Anyway, you only have one party to run against in Mississippi," put in Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith, wife of the Wisconsin Republican representative.

Mrs. Abernethy and Mrs. Omar Burleson, wife of the Democratic congressman from Texas, vetoed this in unison.

"I'd rather run against a Republican any day than another Democrat," said Mrs. Burleson. "The fight is easier, not so bitter, and the two opponents stick to issues, whereas the Democrats fighting against each other get into personalities, family skeletons, reputations."

Mrs. Burleson said she went every place her husband did, including feed stores where she sat on egg-mash sacks that "fit better than any contour chair."

Mrs. Smith said she helped judge a milking contest where her husband was making a speech on the same platform with the cow.

Pretty Mrs. Frank Church, wife of the Democratic senator from Idaho, who traveled over the home district with her husband on his first "off-year" visit since his election, disagreed with the others.

"You get to talk more easily and leisurely than when you're actively campaigning," she said.

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower may have set a style for a new type of moon watching teams — spotting the first signs of an upturn in business.

He thinks they'll begin showing up before summer. But already some watchers think they've spotted a sign here and there, all but lost among the more numerous statistics pointing to a deepening recession. Some of the hopeful signs:

Retail sales in January set records in a number of cities, just as Christmas sales managed to in a last minute spurt.

Some companies are reporting record earnings and sales, even while many others are caught in the squeeze on profit margins.

A slight pickup in new orders in the last two or three weeks is reported by the heads of the two largest steel companies.

Construction in January pleased the Commerce and Labor Departments by setting a record for the month, largely due to record spending for a January by public utilities and office buildings.

Although the utilities find that the industrial slump has cut back power output, they still are going ahead with expansion plans. And their earnings statements show about the same gain as usual. Only nine out of 75 utilities reporting so far have lower net profits after taxes than in 1956. As a whole the 75's net income is 6 per cent higher.

Wall Street thinks it's sighted a different economic moon on the horizon — renewed inflation — and has bid up stocks accordingly. The belief is based on reports that Congress is in a mood to spend even more than the additional amount the President asks.

If Congress also should cut taxes, the result would be a fair sized treasury deficit. This would be inflationary. And this, Wall Street figures, would give business an inflationary psychology, renewing expansion programs — and, alas, boosting prices.

But while some point to these signs of better days returning, the majority still cautions there's no sure indication yet that the recession has hit bottom.

They note that in the 1953-54 slump the economy bumped along on bottom for about six months before the new boom started.

Taft's 'No Campaigning' Pledge Labeled Precedent

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Charles P. Taft set a political precedent in Ohio with his "standby" candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Politicians could recall no previous instance of a candidate entering a primary election with the declared intention of not campaigning against an incumbent because of his health.

They wondered whether Taft, former Cincinnati mayor and 1952 GOP nominee for governor, could or would remain a candidate after the Feb. 15 deadline for withdrawal. Taft insisted he had not made up his mind but would have "something to say" by that date.

Taft, 60, said he took the field merely as insurance against a possibility that Gov. C. William O'Neill's health might force a change in plans to seek reelection.

The 41-year-old governor is recovering from a heart attack suffered Jan. 22. Physicians said he would be able to campaign for a second term.

Asked if he planned any active campaigning, Taft said: "None whatever, under any circumstances, as long as Bill O'Neill remains in . . . He has done a good job. Around Cincinnati we like him."

Taft said he rejected suggestions about a month ago that he run against O'Neill. But two days after the governor's illness was announced, Taft said he decided to get in on a standby basis.

Republican State Chairman Ray C. Bliss, sounding unhappy, said he was not consulted by Taft and declined further comment. Taft's action prevents the GOP State Committee, which sought to keep a clear field for O'Neill and other state office incumbents, from naming a replacement if the governor should drop out. Without Taft in the picture, the committee could make a replacement.

Officials wondered whether Taft's petitions could survive the close check they apparently will receive from election boards, especially in Cincinnati and Cleveland where the bulk of signatures were obtained.

Howard I. Chesler of Cleveland, Taft's campaign secretary in 1952, filed 1,350 names from 39 counties barely five minutes before the 4 p.m. filing deadline Wednesday. At least 1,000 valid signatures from 30 counties are required to qualify. A preliminary check indicated that some 100 of the hurriedly obtained signatures might not stand up. One petition apparently will be disqualified for lack of an affidavit. A few others may not be in order.

Taft expressed confidence that the petitions will stand up. He supervised their circulation throughout the state, except in the Cleveland area where Chesler operated. Taft said a few hundred additional signatures failed to reach Columbus in time for filing.

Chesler is an associate of Paul Walter, Cleveland attorney, whose role in the Taft camp sometimes is likened to that of Alvin I. Krenzel in the O'Neill set up. Krenzel, Cleveland attorney who got the juiciest job as deputy motor vehicle registrar off the O'Neill patronage tree, helped mastermind the governor's campaign. Taft said he had talked with Walter. "He is an old friend of mine; we have worked together politically," he said.

Walter worked for U.S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, older brother of Charles Taft, before the senator's death. Friends of Walter said he appeared anxious to get back in the political swim.

Taft indicated he would decide whether to step aside or remain as a standby candidate in the May 6 primary soon after his return on Feb. 12 from a trip to Seattle, Wash.

"I have not made up my mind completely; I am trying to figure out the right thing to do," he reported.

Politicians buzzed over the situation. They said Taft missed a chance to put himself in solid with the state organization for the future if he had announced earlier and withdrawn when O'Neill was reported recovering rapidly.

Donald's Voice From Mild Man

By RALPH FRIEDMAN
Central Press Association
Correspondent

GLENDAL, Calif.—The raspy, saucy voice of "Donald Duck" belongs to a cheerfully modest grandfather — Clarence Nash. He has been "Donald's" one and only voice for almost a quarter of a century, when that irrepressible character was first introduced to the screen by Walt Disney.

Nash took to keeping pets and imitating them while still a strapping in Oklahoma. These included coyotes, raccoons, skunks, ponies, birds and barnyard fowl. When he was 13, and the family had moved to western Missouri, Clarence acquired a billy goat which he fed on a bottle, and which, indirectly, started him on the road to his unique career.

"Whenever I left the goat he cried just like a baby," recalls Nash, "and I began to imitate him. One day I figured — if I could put words to the sound I'd have another voice in my mouth."

At 17, Clarence quit high school and hiked into Kansas City to apply for a job on the Horner-Redpath chautauqua circuit and lyceum as a mandolin player. Told that each performer was required to have two skills, he replied that he could imitate birds. He was hired.

DURING the first year, the company discovered that Clarence could recite "Mary Had a Little Lamb" in a "lamb-voice." He was given a whopping $5 a week boost and told to include the recitation in his act.

When the circuit folded, Nash got an office job in northern California, where he met his wife. They were married in San Francisco, and a month later Clarence was out of work again. So they headed for Los Angeles.

Los Angeles was cold to Nash. Jobs were scarce. The tide turned, however, when Nash was offered employment by a dairy. For three years he was "Whistling Clarence, the Birdman," entertaining at schools, clubs and lodges.

One night, in 1933, spurred on by friends who felt he ought to be on radio, he hid himself to a station and offered to work for free. That night Walt Disney heard him and suggested an audition. Clarence did the usual "Mary Had a Little Lamb," followed by imitations of quacking ducks. Disney blurted out, "Gee, there's a talking duck!" (Since then, "Mary" etc., has been done in duck-tongue.)

Nash went on the Disney payroll, and the year following, "Donald Duck" made the first of his more than 100 screen appearances. Nash has done a multitude of sounds for Disney cartoons; bird imitations, crickets, frogs, horses, dogs, cats and seals. However, most of his work has been with his smart-alecky, feathered sidekick. He has been "Donald's" tongue in English, Spanish, French, Dutch, Italian, German and Swedish.

Three years ago Nash and his wife purchased a feed and seed store in Glendale. When he's not at the Disney studio he's at the store, waiting on customers or exchanging imitations with the neighboring kids.

Fayette Slaying May Be Solved by Man's Confession
WASHINGTON, C. H. — The rape-slaying of an 87-year-old widow near here last summer may be close to solution. Sheriff Orland Hays left Friday for Richmond, Va., to question a Negro who, authorities there say, has admitted killing six persons in recent years. The slayings allegedly occurred in Ohio, Alabama, Georgia and Virginia.

Virginia state police said Jeremiah McCray, 25, told how he and another man used a hammer to kill an elderly woman "in a white farm house with a green roof" near Columbus, Ohio, about July 1, 1957.

Police identified this victim as Mrs. Sarah DeWitt, a widow hacked to death with a hatchet in the upstairs bedroom of her six-room house on Ohio 62, about three miles north of here, last July 2.

P&G Hearings Due In Various Cities
CINCINNATI — A Federal Trade Commission hearing on monopoly law violation charges against the Procter & Gamble Co., will start moving around the country next month.

Presentation of testimony and exhibits here was ended Thursday and FTC Examiner Everett F. Hayercraft said the next hearing would be in San Francisco beginning April 15. Other phases of the investigation will be conducted later in Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, New York and perhaps in a southern city.

Procter & Gamble is accused of having violated the anti-monopoly laws when it bought the Clorox Chemical Co., last August.

Couple Injured In Bar Argument
AKRON — An argument in local cafe led to a shooting in which Thomas Shellmond, 45, and his wife Rose, 37, were wounded critically.

Mrs. John Campbell, operator of the cafe, and other witnesses among six patrons who were in the place, told police Ernest Austin, unemployed, fired the shots after a quarrel with the Shellmonds, whose apartment is above the cafe. The wounded couple is in Akron General Hospital.

Fence-Mending Back Home Is Hard on Solons' Wives

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Congressional wives were glad to get back to the capital after spending most of the summer in their home districts. They were tired, they told me, and "needed a rest."

Fence-mending, keeping up contacts, making new friends and "cutting down the opposition," they contend, adds up to much harder work in the off years than the most rigorous campaigning they do in election years.

"It was hectic," exclaimed Mrs. Clifford Davis, wife of the Democratic House member from Tennessee. "I came back worn out. During the 'on year' everybody knows what you're after. You get lots of invitations. It's much easier."

Mrs. Thomas G. Abernethy said she accompanied her husband, the Democratic congressman from Mississippi, to every nook and cranny of his 100-mile-wide, 240-mile-long district and attended a mammoth barbecue given by 14 counties in one ball park.

"They put an ad in the paper and said 'you-all come!' and they did," she said. "They had a band playing and barbecued 13 cows."

"Anyway, you only have one party to run against in Mississippi," put in Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith, wife of the Wisconsin Republican representative.

Mrs. Abernethy and Mrs. Omar Burleson, wife of the Democratic congressman from Texas, vetoed this in unison.

"I'd rather run against a Republican any day than another Democrat," said Mrs. Burleson. "The fight is easier, not so bitter, and the two opponents stick to issues, whereas the Democrats fighting against each other get into personalities, family skeletons, reputations."

Mrs. Burleson said she went every place her husband did, including feed stores where she sat on egg-mash sacks that "fit better than any contour chair."

Mrs. Smith said she helped judge a milking contest where her husband was making a speech on the same platform with the cow.

Pretty Mrs. Frank Church, wife of the Democratic senator from Idaho, who traveled over the home district with her husband on his first "off-year" visit since his election, disagreed with the others.

"You get to talk more easily and leisurely than when you're actively campaigning," she said.
